Reimagining your Community: Examples from British Columbia, Scandinavia, and the UK

Communities and industry across the north are being challenged to adapt and innovate to respond to change. Some of the changes are driven by transformation and demand in the global economy. Others are driven by changes within our own communities, such as an aging population. How can communities adapt and transform so that they are more resilient and have more sustainable economies?

The CDI's Fall Speakers Series will explore the process of transformation. In a talk called, Reimagining Your Community, Greg Halseth and Marleen Morris will draw upon examples from BC, Scandinavia, and the United Kingdom to provide inspiration and a framework for moving forward.

Greg Halseth and Marleen Morris are Co-Directors at the Community Development Institute.
