

Communities across northern BC are faced with challenge, change, and opportunity.

How communities react will increasingly be in their own hands.

This major is for students who want to make a difference in their communities by addressing these challenges, changes, and opportunities.

A new major:

Public Administration and Community Development

The purpose of the PACD major is to equip graduates for community leadership, with the knowledge and skills to bring together diverse expertise and information on an array of subjects and mobilize it to community benefit.

The major requirements draw upon the teaching strengths of many academic units at UNBC. The degree includes required courses as well as courses selected from a set of 7 'focus' areas.
