

University of Northern British Columbia
Dean, College of Science and Management

The University of Northern British Columbia (UNBC) aspires to be Canada's premier small, research-intensive university, with internationally recognized academic and research programs that prepare its graduates in select areas of relevance to the region, province, and beyond. The University has garnered significant recognition for its successes, including being ranked third in the annual Maclean's Magazine survey, and being named one of Canada's Research Universities of the Year.

The College of Science and Management comprises nine departments within three faculties: Science, Management, and Natural Resources & Environmental Studies. Reporting to the Provost, and working with faculty, staff and the senior administration of the University, the Dean is expected to provide leadership that supports an interdisciplinary environment, promotes existing programs, facilitates innovative teaching and research, develops graduate programs, and attracts outstanding students to the College of Science and Management.

The ideal candidate will bring outstanding academic and research credentials combined with university management experience as a Chair, Associate Dean or Dean in a discipline related to the College. This is an exciting opportunity to live in a community with spectacular outdoor recreational opportunities and to make a mark on a leading post-secondary institution that is still growing and developing.

To explore this opportunity further, please contact our search consultants Lara Truderung, Ken Werker or Brent Cameron of Odgers Berndtson at (604) 685-0261 or please submit your resume online at: www.odgersberndtson.ca/en/careers/8877

The University of Northern British Columbia is committed to employment equity and encourages applications from women, aboriginal peoples, persons with disabilities and members of visible minorities.