Climate Justice, Politics, and Policy

In this lively discussion we will lead with our panel prompts, How can Canada achieve climate justice in the political sphere and on the international stage? & How do other actors such as the UN, other countries, and stakeholders/rightsholders come into play when Canada is developing its own climate justice policy? Exploring various perspectives of speakers and adding to this discussion with follow up questions such as; What are the paradigm shifts necessary to achieve climate justice on a global scale? Climate change is not just an environmental issue; can we discuss the human rights issues of climate change? The Indigenization of climate policy; How Indigenous People of the world have lead movements in climate justice and how to propel this momentum and knowledge into mainstream climate policy.
