

Using Archives to Share Stories of Change in the Upper Fraser Region of Northern B.C.

An Archival Connections Speakers Series event

The Upper Fraser region, from Prince George to Valemount, provides a microcosm of British Columbia forestry policy and activity through the past 100 years as communities and industries have responded, changed, and transformed over time. Using a series of introductory snapshots, this presentation highlights the opportunities of archival information and data to learn about some of these changes and transformations.
