

Graduate Teaching Assistant

College of Arts, Social and Health Sciences Part time, Term

The College of Arts, Social and Health Sciences (CASHS), through its teaching, research and service, promotes an understanding and appreciation of humanity and the development of human wellbeing in northern British Columbia. The College links northern BC to the world, and the world to northern BC. It is concerned with people, health, culture and values, and is committed to enhancing opportunities for individuals, building strong, healthier communities, and improving quality of life.

Currently the College of Arts, Social and Health Sciences invites applications for part-time term positions as Graduate Teaching Assistants. To see a list of available positions and start dates, please refer to the Graduate Teaching Assistant Positions spreadsheet available on the Graduate Teaching Assistant webpage.

The successful applicant will be responsible for, but not limited to, course preparation, laboratory contact and preparation, course and exam attendance, holding office hours, out of class student support, and evaluating and grading student exams and assignment.

Applicants for this position must be currently enrolled in a UNBC graduate program, and have advanced knowledge of topic covered in applied for courses. Applicants should list any relevant courses for which they have previously completed course-work or served in a teaching assistant role. Other combinations of education and experience may be considered.

Since its founding in 1990, the University of Northern British Columbia (UNBC) has emerged as one of Canada's best small research-intensive universities, with a passion for teaching, discovery, people, and the North. Located in the spectacular landscape near the geographic centre of beautiful British Columbia, UNBC's excellence is derived from community-inspired research, hands-on learning, and alumni who are leading change around the world.

For the past 10 years, UNBC has placed in the top three in its category in the annual Maclean's university rankings, the only University of its size to achieve that feat. UNBC also recently placed among the top four per cent of higher education institutions worldwide by the Times Higher Education World University Rankings.

With a diverse student population, the University is friendly, inclusive, and supportive. Prince George is a city of ~74,000 people with impressive cultural, educational, and recreational amenities. For more information about living and working in Prince George, please refer to <http://www.unbc.ca/experience> and <https://moveupprincegeorge.ca>. Make your mark with this leading post-secondary institution.

To Apply

Applicants should submit an electronic version of their curriculum vitae and the Graduate Teaching Assistant Application Form quoting course title and number to: Human Resources, University of Northern British Columbia, 3333 University Way, Prince George, BC V4N 4Z9. Electronic submissions of the Graduate Teaching Assistant Application Form can be forwarded to: GraduateTAREcruit@unbc.ca.

The University of Northern British Columbia is committed to employment equity and encourages applications from women, aboriginal peoples, persons with disabilities and members of visible minorities.

We thank all applicants for their interest in UNBC however, only those applicants selected for further consideration will be contacted.