Research/Study Goals Statement (Maximum Length = 2 Pages)

A research/study goals statement is a short document that provides a brief history of your past research experience, the current state of your research, and the future work you intend to complete.

The research statement may be similar to the statement of academic interests provided with your application for admission to UNBC. It is, however, important to remember that for the purposes of this award consideration, it is the primary way for UNBC's GES Review Committee to evaluate award applications and make its recommendations.

Your statement should start by articulating the broader field that you are working within and the larger question or questions that you are interested in answering. It should then move to articulate your specific interest.

A Research/Study Goals Statement should always include the following:

- Your specific area of interest (i.e. the research topic you want to work on)
- How your past education and other experiences have prepared you to be successful in the graduate program
- What you hope to achieve in your graduate program
- Why this particular program at UNBC is the best place for you to pursue your interests
- Include the name of your proposed academic supervisor and how s/he is the best 'fit' for your research and the person most suited to helping you achieve your research goals

Other tips for a strong Research/Study Goals Statement:

- State any work you have done in this area already (mention specific skills/techniques you have picked up).
- Connect your area of interest to work being done in the program (mention specific faculty members and projects).
- Refer to academic publications that have informed your interest (ensure that these are properly cited in a footnote).
- Mention any publications, presentations or conferences you have been a part of.

*Please note that supervisors/potential supervisors may be contacted for further information or clarification as part of the GES adjudication process.
