

SEMINAR SERIES

INDIGENOUS PEOPLES AND MULTIPLE SCLEROSIS: STORIES FROM LHEIDLI T'ENNEH TERRITORY IN PRINCE GEORGE, BC

Multiple Sclerosis (MS) is a chronic autoimmune disease affecting the central nervous system. Despite several population studies on MS, Indigenous perspectives on MS are underrepresented in scholarly literature. Funded by the BC Network Environment for Indigenous Health Research, this study profiles Indigenous MS experiences in Prince George to decolonize health research, foreground Indigenous perspectives regarding MS, and promote culturally relevant healthcare for Indigenous Peoples in Canada and beyond. Please join us to hear from research participants and the study researchers to learn more about Indigenous Peoples and MS and the important stories that were shared.

EMILY JUREK

DR. RHEANNA ROBINSON

ASHLEY WILKINSON

LUNCH PROVIDED

JANUARY 15TH
12:00PM - 2:00PM

LHUHUHWHEZDEL: THE GATHERING PLACE
(5-123) & ONLINE

For details on webinar & upcoming sessions, scan the QR code

