WELCOME STUDENTS!

Faculty and Staff at the School of Education Terrace campus would like to welcome the Bachelor of Education 2015 students; this September will mark the 5th cohort at the Terrace campus. Our graduates continue to be successful within our communities in their chosen profession.

Kau'i Keliipio's Retirement

Many Northwest teachers may know Kau'i Keliipio. Kau'i was Simon Fraser University's first Education Coordinator for the Northwest Region and had successfully delivered the education program. Kau'i led the way in terms of focusing regional teacher education on Aboriginal peoples and worked towards ensuring that they have a prominent voice in the classrooms of the northwest. Kau'i is a knowledgeable, skillful and talented teacher who is consistently focused on what is best for 'the little people' in the classrooms. Her retirement has presented an opportunity for her to continue advancing her work and she has enrolled in a Doctoral program. Best wishes on your retirement, Kau'i, from all of us in the School of Education (Terrace) and from the many teachers who have benefitted from your leadership!

Linda's Links

<http://education.nationalgeographic.com/activity/breaking-down-invisible-walls/>

From National Geographic Education – Breaking Down Invisible Walls: an activity that asks the question "What social boundaries exist between different identity groups in my community or school and how can I cross those boundaries?" This is one of many different kinds of activities available. Check it out!
