“Responsible Resource Development in Northwest BC”

Presenter:
Greg Knox

What is Responsible Development?

An Approach to Ensuring Development is in the Best Interest of Local Communities.

This talk will explore proactive options for assuring that industrial development protects our communities and the things we value. There are ways for planning, independent science, early engagement and co-management to improve decision-making, reduce impacts and increase benefits to local communities. This presentation will also touch on best practices in mining and forestry, look at how the NW economy is changing, and provide some examples of innovation and diversification in the region.
